Messages of condolence from all parts of the country continued to come today to the office of Robert Adams, the mayor's secretary and at the Gaynor home St. James, L. London Paper's Comment.

The general opinion, is the Westchester Gazette's comment this afternoon on the late Mayor Gayner. His term in office has shown what a strong, determined man can do under difficult circumstances. The best we hope for New York is that it will find a successor capable of carrying his policy with the same self-reliance and with indifference to the opinion of the party machine." The other afternoon newspapers print no editorial comment on the mayor's path.

REYNOLDS REPORTS DEBT PAYING YEAR

SUPERINTENDENT OF JANESVILLE DISTRICT SUBMITS REPORT AT M. E. CONFERENCE.

RESULTS GRATIFYING

Carefully Goes Over Work in Southern Wisconsin Churches During Past Year Showing Encouraging Situation.

The Reverend John Reynolds of this city, superintendent of the Janesville district of the Methodist Episcopal church, submitted his report at the session of the conference at Beloit today. The text of the report will be of interest to the members of the denomination throughout this section of the state, as it indicates a most encouraging prosperity in the church under Rev. Reynolds' direction. It is given in full below:

Dear Fathers and Brethren:—The year on the Janesville District has been, in the first place, one of debt paying.

While I would not, under any circumstances, convey the impression that any great amount of credit is due me for the success attained, I am profoundly thankful to be in a position to report the victory won by the strong efforts made by a generous and self-denying people to cancel the obligations on the church property.

With Psalm 122, verse 14, in my mind, I am compelled to regard the general release from debt as a jubilee of better spiritual days. The Lord will arise, and have mercy upon Zion, for thy servants take pleasure in her stones.

Cause for Gratification. When the stain of indebtedness on the walls of the sanctuary is cleansed by the fingers of devotion, and the process has been completed without leaving glacial marks of irritation, but rather the polish of "pleasure," we have a right to hope that history will repeat itself and that the glory of the Lord will fill the tabernacle and temple.

Two large and expensive churches were built during my predecessor's term of office, and several smaller enterprises were finished, when one of those periodical fluctuations in the financial world occurred, making it impossible to collect the pledges. Six years ago there was reported an indebtedness of almost $40,000. Since then $75,000 has actually been paid for building and improving, indications of the prosperous era through which we have been passing, and the conservation of money to the best possible use.

Not included in these figures are those indicating the successes of the present year. At East Troy there was $3,000 to raise on our excellent new church, and Bishop Quayle came to our relief on the first of June. Lee-land, on "Starvation" and "Prohibition," which was almost a revelation to his audience, he also did yeoman service in lifting the debt, a heavy one for the community.

Where all the money needed was not raised that day, so strong was the impetus given to the movement, that, under the tactful industry of the pastor, the deficiency has been secured and $2,000 paid.

With his family the Fall River pastor occupies the new parsonage, a marvel of economy and convenience. It cost $3,000, and the bills have been paid. The credit for the enterprise is given in the community to the man who has been resident pastor for two years.

Not satisfied with the lighting facilities of the church and parsonage, Hebron has installed its own electric light plant, an independent concern, furnishing illumination to the meeting house and manse. The total cost is $250, and is worthy of imitation by parties desiring their own equipment for lighting the church premises exclusively.

Lake Mills has paid nearly $300 on old debts, and raised $200 for street improvements. The church at Lyons is being remodelled at an expense of $1,800, and $1,800 has been subscribed to bring the old church at La Grange up to the demands of the neighborhood. For the first time in our history a Methodist society has been organized in the latter place, where we have had preaching for almost half a century, and Judge Lyons of Elkhorn is our authority for the statement that our title to the property, formerly held by the Methodist Protestants will soon be quieted.

New Sharon Church. The well appointed and altogether beautiful church in Sharon has been finished and dedicated, and stands valued at $20,000. The building stands on a most desirable corner of Main street, and the citizens are so proud of the appearance of the building that they have placed a $500 Society fund in its tower to say that the Rev. G. W. White has just finished a seven year pastorate there is sufficient warrant for assuring this Conference that every effort has been made to collect all the subscriptions which went far beyond the disciplinary requirements before the work was undertaken.

Palmyra has raised its $600 debt, while Stoughton, calmed, last evening, the heat of its $200 body of debt, in the burning light of that transaction Stoughton decided to hold its next session in that church, and declares in good faith that it will strip, Edgerton in its accommodations. Watertown paid $1,200 this year, and $2,000 last on its obligations. Our residential bishop was present at the jubilee held Dec. 8 to rejoice with the society seeing its way out of its troubles, and his presence was a blessing to the work. Subsequently another note of $500 was found against the church, whose existence, somehow, was not known when the pastor was soliciting and when the jubilee was held.

Beloit Debt. Beloit debt has been the cause of considerable anxiety. Six years ago it amounted to $16,500 and the Society was paying 6 per cent interest. As I reported last year, the debt has gradually been reduced. This fall the pastor, trustees and people realized that this was an opportune time to make the final effort, and under the personal importunities of the pastor, and the efficient assistance of the Aid Society, thirty-third degree artists in the honorable art of money raising, with the slogan "Down with the debt, and up with the church," within the two months past pledges have been obtained sufficient to cover all obligations on this sanctuary. If similar diligence is evidenced in collecting that has been manifest in securing the promises, two years from November there will not be a single dollar obligation left unpaid.

With the exception of Mayville (which was not included in this district until this year, where there is a surplus of $1,000 on the substantial new parsonage), everything on our property is amply provided for by good subscriptions.

The case of Mayville church has not yet had a hearing in the Supreme court. We fully expected it would be settled last winter, but it is still pending in the case, asked for a postponement until November, and though our attorneys were ready, we were compelled to consent.

Last conference there have been six changes in parsonages. The charges at Allen's Grove, Columbus, Footville, Hebron, Salem and Troy Center were, for various reasons, left temporarily without preachers.

Public services were not suspended. In every case but one we managed to keep the pulpits supplied each Sunday until pastors were secured.

Congratulates District. As to other varying conditions, I quote the testimony of the district, of appointments, given this fall, while sending his figures asking for greater generosity another year, to meet the growing demands of the mission and other needs. The Janesville District is to be congratulated on its showing of increased membership, property valuations, ministerial support, and offerings to the disciplinary collections each year.

Examining the statistics, encouraging sketches reveal themselves, endorsing Mr. Hollingshead's estimates. Clinton has had two weeks' revival meetings with the Conference Quartet. In this group the pastor stands head and shoulders above the others. Eleven have united with the church, a men's union brotherhood is maintained and the benevolences make an excellent showing.

While Delavan does not boast of its Epworth League, it does its Sunday school, and with good reason, because of its uniform attendance and growing interest. Three hundred dollars has been paid here for needed improvements. Sixteen members have been received on the Edgerton station, and a brotherhood sustained. Elkhorn has admitted fourteen into its fellowship.

Evangelistic Services. Evansville held several weeks of Union Evangelistic services under the able leadership of the Rev. H. H. Miller, former Chicago clergyman. A tent meeting with Brother Joel Smith, as leader, was held at Footville this summer. Fort Atkinson reports having introduced fifty-five by letter, and from previous membership, a marked revival of interest and attendance in the Epworth League, collections creditable to the generosity of the people, two new and substantial parsonages, and a clean balance sheet.

Horicon and Juneau have been blessed with series of revival meetings conducted by the local minister and pastors of adjacent churches. Twelve additions are the partial result. A Tithers Band lives and makes music here, the rules concerning systematic giving are observed, all bills are promptly met, and the size of the collections should make some wealthier parishes blush.

The Lake Mills pastor conducted special meetings for his people, and twenty-one have come into the society by letter and from probation. Evangelistic services conducted by an evangelist from outside the state, were held at Milton Junction, and eleven members were received. This change occupies an enviable position in its uniformly large gifts to the benevolences.

On Palmyra circuit twenty-one have been taken into full fellowship, under the able pastorate of Rev. J. H. White, in healthy operation, and the collections show a decided advance. Richmond reports an increase of twelve members: Shopshire, three; and Stoughton, two. The latter pastor, Rev. J. H. White, received twelve and Waterloo six.

At the latter place there are 250 enrolled in the Sunday schools, and the collections will probably reach the appointments in full.

Notes of Various Churches. Whitewater has almost doubled its Epworth League membership, and received seventeen into its church fellowship.

At Columbus Epworth League and prayer society have been organized, while at Lowell, on the same circuit, has raised almost $500 to pay for new pews, hard wood floor and pulpit furniture.

Sun Prairie is the only church having a vested choir. A pipe organ was placed in the church this spring, and all paid for.

Lake Geneva has had twenty-five additions. At Marshall, notwithstanding the sickness of the pastor, all the interests have been sustained.

Milton, while surrounded by the strongest and most influential Seventh Day community in the state, has placed its property in good condition and demonstrated its right to maintain First Day services.

Janesville, with its membership of over 600, and the most valuable church in the district, has been blessed with good congregations, well attended prayer meetings, and a Sunday school showing an average of 300. It employs a deaconess, and in connection with other churches held an inspiring Teachers' Training class every week during the depth of winter. Fifty-one have been received by letter and from probation.

Orfordville has rejoiced in its well attended services, while at Shopshire, Genoa Junction, Salem and Jefferson the year has been one of loving labor on the part of the ministerial supplies, and of due appreciation by the people.

Beloit has received seventy-five by certificate and otherwise, and will report a net increase of twenty-seven, continuing its leadership in point of membership in the whole conference.

Pro-rating a Practice. Pro-rating is the general rule, not inflexibly observed, it is true, but a growing practice. The greatest difficulty is with the supplies, who leave the work abruptly, sometimes after six or eight months, making a provision for any finances but their own salaries.

The E. L. convention at Lake Mills, the Ministerial Association at Marshfield, the conventions of the Women's Missionary societies, and numerous other church conventions and Epworth League rallies have each and all helped to give a healthy stimulus to the churches.

Death has visited only one out of our forty preachers' homes. Early in the year Brother and Sister Edgerton of Delavan were called to Eau Claire to witness in a hospital the transition of their oldest daughter. A high school teacher of more than ordinary ability and success, she was summoned, while the dew of youth was still fresh upon her, to the presence of Christ and the angels.

Work of Six Years. The six years, constituting my term, have passed rapidly. All my time, energy and ability have been invested in the work the church intrusted to me. No outside interests have diverted my attention. I have responded to every reasonable call, and not a few unreasonable ones. I have noticed that the ministers who preach the gospel attractively, visit the people in their homes, pray with the sick, and cheer the dying, who love the little children, take an interest in the daily work of their people, devote all their time to their task, leaving business affairs to business men, receive their salaries, build up the church, and do not lack hearers. It has been my constant aim to exult the pastorate, and promote its every interest. I have observed that the religious preferences of the people give dying churches an agonizing death. Six years ago, it appeared to me that some of the smaller places were gasping for breath. But, none have given up the ghost, no churches have been permanently closed in that time. Some in that class would be stronger than they are, would be their feet running the race set before them, if we had more of the enthusiasm which sent our fathers to the frontiers, and led them to preach the gospel from house to house.

My attitude for the opportunity of serving the church in this office is genuine. They have been the busiest years of my life, and while happy at being relieved of some of the responsibilities, one cannot help feeling regretfully the society from some other phases of the work.

"I lay down the well-worn tools with a sigh, expecting elsewhere better work to do."

Respectfully submitted,
JOHN REYNOLDS.

Georges Carpentier, the French boxer, is an awful hit in Paris because of his unusual sartorial proclivities. That is to say, he's very dressy. Abroad it is the custom to run Carpentier's picture in the magazines calling attention to his lovely clothes rather than his build or shiftness. He also has the advantage of being a handsome rascal, which seems to go a long way in winning the adoration of the frails.

Carpentier's taste in clothes is said to be unimpeachable and he always wears the latest style collars. In the Gay City of Paris this is a large item. Carpentier is champion of France and notwithstanding his cultured bearing and advanced styles, he is a wonderful fighter. He is said to be a flash for speed, with lots of pluck and the ability to take a great deal of punishment.

B. Hearne, a pitcher with the Toronto team of the International league, has put over a new world's record and won quite a little reputation. Hearne is said to be the marvel of the baseball world for having pitched eighteen innings and allowing but one hit. Which occurred in a game he pitched for Toronto against Newark on August 12. The game resulted in a tie with the score 0 to 0. Hearne will probably be grabbed by a big league team next season. He has had a wonderful record this year.

Freddie Welsh's lightweight championship, which was stolen from him at Vancouver on August 28, has been found at Seattle and the thief or culprit has been duly incarcerated in the city jail at Seattle. The belt was presented to Welsh, who is the English lightweight king, at the National Sporting club, London, in 1912. The purser of the steamship Princess Victoria, running between Vancouver and Seattle, noticed a gold belt on a passenger as they were about to dock at Seattle and inquired of a custom officer, Henry Beckett, who stole the belt, attempt to tussle with the officer when accosted and was speedily shipped off to the lock-up. If Beckett is not prosecuted by the Canadian authorities, he will be held for snatching by the United States custom officers and they will also hold the belt. It is valued at several thousand dollars.

Jim Corbett laughs heartily and in an unrestrained manner at Rob Fitzsimmons' suggestion that they get together for another fight. It will be remembered that Fitz, somewhat worthy at Jim for beating a defeat of years ago, said he would like to meet Corbett again and prove that he licked him fair and square. And Jim ha-ha. "Poor old Rob" says Jim. "He's broke now and he wants a little advertising and so he's pulling this latest one. The only thing for me to do is to ignore him entirely. Of course we probably could get together at Madison Square Garden and perhaps draw quite a crowd. But the public would snicker at the exhibition we'd put up and we'd both be making blamed fools of ourselves. I guess I won't take him out."

LINK AND PIN

Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul. Two cars on a freight train were derailed last night at South Wayne and the Janesville wrecking crew was ordered out at five-thirty this morning to the scene of the wreck. The damage was slight and the cars were put back on the tracks in time for the passenger trains to make their regular runs. The crew sent out of here was taken out by Engineer Bowd.

Passenger business on all railroads is suffering a decided decrease at this time of the year and will not resume its normal state before the holidays. Just before the opening of schools traffic was heavy but most of the students have made their trip to the colleges at the present time. The lake traffic, which was very heavy during the summer months at the local station has dropped off considerably as September ends the outing season. While the summer tourists rates do not expire until the last of the month few people are taking advantage of them because of the short time left and the increasing cold weather. Reports indicate that railroads have enjoyed the biggest receipts from passenger business in their history.

Train number eight was two hours late because of the extra heavy passenger traffic to the Monrovia fair. Seventy-one people from here left this morning over the special train and many left on the regular run at 10:55.

Over forty thousand dollars is being spent by the St. Paul system in building improvements on the north side roundhouse at La Crosse. There has also been some talk of the company building a small roundhouse at La Crosse or River Junction because of the crowding of the yards at La Crosse. Officials are reported to have intimated that work on an immense new roundhouse will begin in the spring and at present eight new stalls have been added to the old house.

A new facing cross over will be installed three thousand feet of the trailing crossing west of Elsdon. The purpose of this is to avoid delay.

Employees at the Janesville roundhouse have asked to cast their votes for their choice of an engineer and fireman to hold a position on the safety first committee. Ballots should be left in the box for time slips.

The Plattville branch run which has been bulletined for fireman closed today.

Engine 2134 on the Racine and Southwestern is in the shops for repairs.

Engine number 400 on the M. P. division is out of the shops after being overhauled.

J. Borden took train 305 at 8:10 this morning.

Engineer Higgins and Fireman Keltner went out on the southwestern division at seven o'clock with 1180.

Falter and Siebert are scheduled on the seven o'clock switch engine. Charles Carr and Harry Louden were at the Monroe fair today.

Engine 434 on the Chicago and Milwaukee division is in the house for repairs.

Living Insects as Ornaments.

In South America and Central America several species of living insects are worn as ornaments. A beetle found in the crevices of old walls is worn by the girls to ward off evil spirits.

LAURIAN LITERARY SOCIETY HOLDS BUSINESS MEETING

At the first meeting of the year the Laurian Literary society of the Janesville high school held last night, Christina McVay was elected to the office of treasurer to succeed Frances Jackson for the coming term. After a short business meeting adjournment was called for.

Officers from last year were: Lorene Bowerman, president, and Phyllis Kelly, clerk, who are to hold office during the first term of the society.

The Theatre

"Madame X" at the Myers theatre Saturday, Sept. 13, matinee and evening. Alexander Blason's famous gripping play of both continents "Madame X" with Miss Alice De Lane in the title role will be seen in this city soon.

The play tells the story of a woman who has made a false step and afterward comes back to her former home to seek the forgiveness of her husband who, at the time turns her away in bitterness.

She then pleads to see her child, a boy four years old who is lying at the point of death, but that privilege is also refused her.

Heart broken she turns back into the path in which she has fallen and finally becomes an absynthe fiend. She shoots her paramour when he attempts to extort money from her former husband.

Her son, who has grown to manhood and has studied for the bar, hears of her case and offers to defend her, and does so, not knowing of course that this woman is his mother until after the trial and she is acquitted.

The father who has been an invited guest to the judge's bench recognizes "Madame X" as his wife.

He tells the son but it is too late, as the strain has been too much for her and she passes to the great beyond before they reach her side. This play is one of the most interesting ever produced and is handled by a most capable cast.

ENTERTAINS YOUNG PEOPLE OF THE NORWEGIAN CHURCH

Miss Bevet last evening entertained the Young People's Society of the Norwegian Lutheran church. The entertainment consisted of mandolin duets by Miss Aker and Mrs. A. Richards, accompanied by Miss Haukland and two solos by Alfred Olson. Games were played following the serving of refreshments. The Young People's Society meets every three weeks, enthusiasm in its work is growing and attendance increasing rapidly.

WEATHER FORECAST

Fair and somewhat colder tonight.

THE NEW TARIFF.

The expected has happened, so far as a revision of the tariff is concerned, and it happens to be a democratic measure, because the democratic party is in control. The republican and progressive party were alike committed to revision downward, and facing this certainty the country has had ample time to discount the future, and this has been freely done.

Any policy which upsets normal conditions in business, causes but little disturbance on the surface. There is a season of gradual retrenchment which results in restricted output. A few men are laid off here and there, until a surplus of labor appears in the labor market, then wage scales commence to weaken and enforced idleness follows as the forerunner of hard times.

A general panic may or may not follow. Much depends upon how well the merchants are prepared to withstand reduced trade, and the stock of confidence possessed by the people.

It is fortunate for the country that there are no surplus stocks either in the hands of merchants or manufacturers at the present time. Trade has been so good for the past few years that stocks could not accumulate, and merchants have been compelled to buy in small quantities.

The era of wild speculation is also a thing of the past, and the money of the country is today in legitimate channels.

That the low tariff will compel some American manufacturers to go out of business is expected, and it remains to be seen how much the people will gain by the operation.

The pulp and paper mills of the country are preparing to move to Canada, and some of them have already gone. A manufacturer of linoleum in Chicago recently dismantled his factory and shipped three hundred thousand dollars' worth of equipment to his principal factory in Connecticut, where twenty-six acres of floor space are occupied in producing the goods.

He says that the new tariff law will put him out of business as he can't afford to pay twenty-six cents an hour for labor, against four cents for the same class of labor in the old world.

Just how many other industries are affected time will tell, but labor will be the principal sufferer because it enters so largely into the cost of production.

There is a general demand throughout the country for cheaper goods, and many people have been led to believe that the tariff is responsible for the high cost of living. If it is it is simply because it has enabled us to pay wages which are unparalleled in any country.

If these wage scales are materially reduced, as they will be if hard times develop, the price of living will come down all right, because enforced economy will follow. The worst times the nation ever experienced was when we had ten cent corn, and everything else in proportion.

The times have been so good during the past decade that we have not appreciated them. It is to be hoped that the business of the country may be able to adjust itself to changed conditions without serious disturbance. There are many things more desirable than cheap goods, for they represent the pauper labor of the old world.

A FRIEND AT LAST.

At last the much-abused bat that flies around the porches during the summer evenings has found a friend. The federal government has experimented and discovered the bat is a much needed member of society. The abuse that has been heaped upon him is not called for. The Madison Democrat also rushes to his defense and prints the following editorial:

"According to a communication just received by the federal department of agriculture a 'plague of bats' has made living unpleasant in parts of Kentucky. In reply to a request for information as to how the bats may be kept out of houses, the biological survey states that the only way is to make dwellings bat-proof by stopping up the holes where the bats nest and that it is impracticable to kill them with sulphur or other fumes as they will die in the house and their dead bodies become a nuisance."

"But—

"Bats should not be killed! They are most useful and entirely harmless. They eat nothing but insects and consequently are a benefit rather than a 'plague' to a neighborhood as they destroy mosquitoes, and a great number of other insects that harm crops and orchards."

"The superstition that they seek to tangle themselves in women's hair is without foundation. On the contrary, the ordinary bat is a harmless creature and a distinctly valuable animal economically. This, of course, does not apply to the vampire bat of the South which sucks the blood of animals and has done much to encourage the general prejudice against all bats."

"But our bats, every one of them, should be protected and encouraged. See them darting about while you sit on the porch of an evening? Well, they then are voraciously devouring the very mosquitoes that you are fighting!"

"Pest of bats?"

"What pitiful ignorance!"

"The next thing we know someone will discover that the mouse is also most useful, the rat needed to make life happy, that even fleas, bugs and roaches are necessary to human life. Science teaches us strange lessons and in their spare moments the all-seeing powers at Washington devote space and time explaining these facts to the public."

COUNTY DEMOCRACY.

It would appear as though the democrats of Rock county are not working in accord, that their lust for office is making them less canny than usual. The wall goes up that the appointments to be made for the various postoffices are to be made of recommendation of one man, whom the old line democrats do not recognize as leader. Instead of by the rank and file of democracy, it is stated that Mr. Davies, who by the way has senatorial aspirations, and who hands out the jobs to the waiting line of democratic patriots in the state of Wisconsin, is ignoring the men who supported Karel for governor and talked of Champ Clark as the party nominee for president opposed to Wilson. It is a terrible state of affairs. The democrats are all worked up over it. For years they have been as scarce as hen's teeth in Rock county, but now the aspirants for office are as plentiful as weeds in a summer garden. Meanwhile the pruning force is being used and interesting developments may be expected.

ALWAYS BUSY.

Politicians are always busy. It takes a pretty bad off year to discourage the faithful planning for victory for the next campaign. In Milwaukee are many leaders of both republican, democratic and bull moose political divisions of the great American people. They are most insistent that their respective cause is right and that right will win and the merry war for the campaign has begun. It promises to be an interesting fight and one well worth viewing from a point of vantage.

"You have mortally wounded our sense of dignity," declares the Mexican prime minister. Perhaps, then, President Wilson is merely waiting for the arrival of the death certificate.

Excavators in the ruins of ancient cities are finding there records complaining of the high cost of living. Perhaps, soon, they will find a few automobile garages.

Don't criticize the Michigan miners for hiding behind petitions. Didn't the revered forefathers send the women to the spring when the Indians were around?

According to an eminent statistician, Americans are the greatest consumers of sugar in the world. Probably it is the state legislatures that bring the total up.

If worse comes to worst in Mexico, perhaps a good many people would be gratified should President Wilson induce Elbert Hubbard to carry a message to Huerta.

The Sultan of Morocco wants to buy Jack Johnson. If he intends using him as one of the guardians of his harem he is more than welcome to him.

And now Senator Lodge was alarmed in a tariff speech by the fall of the Roman empire. We didn't think the senator was as old as that.

On her arrival at New York, Mrs. Pankhurst will doubtless come in for the marked attentions usually paid the undesirable alien.

It remains for young Mr. Thaw's sympathetic feminine friends to explain his facetious reference to "the chicken trust."

One thing which is not causing widespread worry is the proposed increase of taxation on incomes over $100,000.

No railroad company considers a train wreck satisfactorily disposed of until somebody arrests the engineer.

But if Mr. Jerome had drawn the limit of a year in prison, would he have said blithely, "Officer, lead on!"

CLINTON

Clinton, Sept. 12.—Mrs. W. Hamilton, assisted by her sister, Mrs. Minnie Mayberry, entertained about twenty ladies yesterday afternoon at the beautiful country home of Mrs. Hamilton just west of town on Milwaukee road. Bridge was the diversion of the afternoon. Mrs. Merrill L. Stephens proved the lucky player and carried off the prizes. Sumptuous refreshments were served.

Mrs. R. Willson Moore and son of Wilmette, Ill., is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. William J. Tubbs of Elkhoru, Wis., is visiting relatives and friends here for a couple of days.

The foundation is rapidly nearing completion for the new city hall. At the regular meeting of the Clinton fire department Monday evening a motion was made and carried that the company send a vote of thanks to the editor of the Rock County Banner for his recognition of the Clinton fire department in his article in the banner in regard to Labor Day celebration.

Mrs. A. Woodard Jr., of Allen Grove, was here yesterday to attend the Hamilton-Mayberry party.

Rev. W. B. Stubber of Lodi, Wis., is visiting his daughter, Mrs. George

Minor and family. Mrs. John R. Hilmer left Wednesday for Prescott, Arizona, to visit her daughter and husband.

The school board has installed 13 gas stoves and one large range in the domestic science department at the school house. Samuel J. Pelt has the contract for the job.

BODY OF MAN LEFT FOR DAY ON TRACK

Sheriff Whipple Receives Word That Remains of Unknown Man Are Uncared For at Milton.

Sheriff Whipple was notified this afternoon by Richard Finley, employed on some road work near Milton, that the body of an unknown man was lying on the right of way of the St. Paul railroad company at the Bullock farm between Milton and Lima. It is thought that he was struck by a train sometime last night but the railroad employees had neglected to report the matter or had failed to notice the accident. Sheriff Whipple and an undertaker left this afternoon to care for the body the identity of which was unknown.

TAKES GOLD MEDAL MUSICAL FESTIVAL

Miss Geraldine M. Brace Wins High Honors at Calgary in Competition With Two Hundred Singers.

Miss Geraldine M. Brace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Brace of North Jackson street, who for the past year has made her home in the west, and is living at present in Calgary, Canada, recently took part in the annual musical festival held in that city where several hundred singers competed for the prizes. At this contest Miss Brace won the gold medal for excellence in singing. The medal was a very handsome one, on one side the name of the society was engraved, on the other side the name of the winner, Miss Geraldine M. Brace. Miss Brace has many friends in this city, who will be pleased to hear of her success.

Willie's Essay on Microbes. Microbes is small bugs or animals which does not exist until they are discovered by some scientist who wants to get his pitcher in the paper. A hundred years ago there wasn't no microbes as they had not yet come into style but now there are 5,978,426 different varieties and they are gaining at the rate of about 457 new kinds every day. Benjamin Franklin and Davy Crockett and Daniel Boone would not have known what a microbe was if they should have met one in the street and they all lived to a ripe old age.

My grandpa used to drink outn a guord at the town pump and used to sleep in the house with the winers shee and used to let the flies use his bald spot for a skate rink and he never heered of a mikrobe in his life. Grandpa is alive yet and is somewhere between a hundred and a hundred and fifty and he don't wear specks and kin eat anything from corn beef and cabbage to pickled herring.

When you get a pain in your solar plexus the doc says, says he, "You have got a mikrobe in your system and I will have to shoot some more mikrobes in your system to kill the first one. You see the mikrobes I will shoot into you don't like the mikrobe who is already there and they will eat him up."

Then he has to shoot in some more mikrobes to eat up the ones he has shot in to eat up the first one and so it goes.

My paw says mikrobes ain't so bad, after all. Every gentleman has a few and if he leaves for an alone and don't know they are there they won't bit him like a alligator or sting him like a ladder. But it don't pay to get 'em riled up.

According to Uncle Abner. The entire police force, consisting of Constable Ezra Hand, was attracted to the rear of the flour and feed mill last Friday evening, from which direction heavy firing continued. As the fusillade of shots continued the rumor quickly spread that a party of armed bandits were invading the village and our residents turned out with pitchforks and shotguns. The constable discovered when he was half way to the scene of action that he had left his star at home and he had to go back after it. When the last of the villagers arrived at the spot they found Elmer Jones trying to start his motorcycle.

The engagement of Lemuel Hicks and Miss Pansy Tibbitts, the charming and accomplished daughter of William Tibbitts, our merchant prince who keeps the general store, has been bruck off sudden. They were sitting in the hammock the other night when Mr. Lefe Perkins, who is a bitter rival of Mr. Hicks for the hands of the fair lady, sneaked up from behind and cut the ropes and they hit the floor with a dull and sickening thud. Mr. Hicks landed on a pint flash of Old Moonshine which he had in his hip pocket and the contents of the same spread around the porch. After seeing the licker Miss Tibbitts called the engagements off. Mr. Hicks claims that Mr. Perkins put the flash in his pocket just before cutting the ropes and while he was busy engaged otherwise.

"OLD DEFENDER'S DAY" OBSERVED IN MARYLAND

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] More today held its customary observance of "Old Defenders' Day," the stock exchange and banks before closed, together with many places of business. The celebration is in honor of the anniversary of the repulse of the British in their attack on Baltimore during the War of 1812. It was the defense of the city on this occasion that inspired Francis Scott Key to write "The Star-Spangled Banner."

One Price Policy On Oriental Rugs

(Same as all through the store.)

Re-acts To Your Benefit and Ours:

To charge a man just as much as he will pay is short sighted policy in any business. We realize the intelligence of the Oriental Rug buying public and understand in the long run the one price policy pays. Every Oriental Rug in our store is marked at plain figures and sold to every one at that price, which is the lowest price consistent with conservative business.

Here are several reasons why the one-piece policy re-acts to your benefit and ours:

It is right—for a dollar is a dollar and should always buy a dollar's worth.

It secures the confidence of the customer.

It grades Oriental Rugs where they belong.

It secures the house the respect of the community.

It makes the customers feel they have been dealt with squarely.

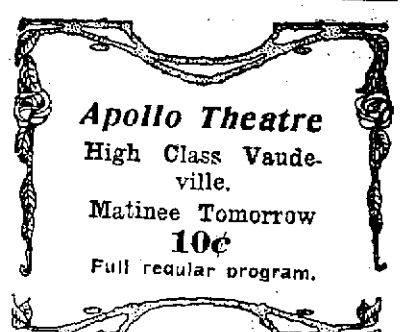

It enables business to be conducted on a closer margin, for profits and expenses can be figured more accurately in advance.

It imparts an enduring reputation to the house.

It does away with fictitious price-marking and half price sales.

It pays to think.

This is the Big Store's system of selling Oriental Rugs.

MISS ETHEL ROBERTS IS QUIETLY WEDDED

Popular Janesville Young Woman Becomes Bride of Edwin Galt Brookfield of Sterling, Illinois.

In the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends the wedding of Miss Ethel Roberts and Edwin Galt Brookfield, of Sterling, Ill., was solemnized at eight o'clock Thursday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Carrie L. Roberts, 235 Court street. The Reverend J. W. Laughlin of the First Presbyterian church, read the marriage service.

Except for little Misses Helen Sarah Butler of Des Moines, Iowa, and Helen Jane Hardy of Sterling, the nieces of the groom, who were the flower girls, the couple were unattended as they took their places beneath a bower of greenery relieved here and there with touches of pink and white.

The bride was most attractive in a gown of embroidered crepe de chene richly trimmed with Bohemian and rose point lace. She wore a veil and carried a bridal bouquet.

The Roberts home was tastefully decorated in a color scheme of green and pink, roses and southern snailx being prominently used.

After the ceremony refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Brookfield will enjoy an extended trip to points of interest on the Pacific coast before they take up their residence at Sterling, Ill.

The bride is one of Janesville's most charming young women. She has been most popular in the younger social set and has won admiration with her sweet and gracious ways. She attended school for a time at Lake Forest where she became acquainted with Mr. Brookfield who was a student at Lake Forest University. The school-day romance culminated most happily in the wedding of last evening.

Mr. Brookfield is a promising young business man of the thriving Illinois city. He holds a responsible position with the Rock Falls manufacturing company and has a brilliant future before him. He comes of an influential stock and is most highly regarded.

Among the guests from out of the city were: Mrs. L. B. Brookfield, mother of the groom, of Sterling, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hardy and children Jane and James Hardy, Sterling, Ill.; and Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Butler and children Helen Sarah Butler and Edwin Butler, of Des Moines, Ia. Mrs. Hardy and Mrs. Butler are sisters of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Granger of this city, were also in attendance.

The Fall Is the Time To Paint

Because an essential to good results is a dry surface. Your house will be much dryer after the Summer's heat than after the Winter's dampness. The paint will take better hold of the wood and will dry harder and better than in the Spring.

TOBACCO HARVEST
 NEARLY COMPLETED

Only Late Fields Will Remain Unshed-ded at End of Week.—B Stock is Plentiful.
 Local showers covering a fair portion of the southern tobacco growing section on Sunday night broke the heated spell that has prevailed nearly since the harvest started and was proving a decided detriment to the crop, says the Edgerton Reporter.
 Every day for a week previous the burning heat and hot winds were taking thousands of dollars out of the value of the crop, in stunting the development of the later fields, tending to produce small, thick leaf rather than brier tobacco. The hot weather, too, was not good for the shedded tobacco as the curing was proceeding much too fast to secure proper colors of quality. Just what benefit will be derived from the rains and cooler weather is yet to be determined as far as helping out the later fields, but certainly the curing of the harvested tobacco has been greatly aided and it seems now ready certain—there will be more in stock in the present crop than was hoped for or even desired.
 One of the obstacles in the way of intelligent field buying, were it to resumed this year, is the unevenness of the crop that has been apparent ever since the planting season and the uncertainty of what the late fields will finally yield as a binder proposition. There is said to be tobacco on almost every farm of considerable acreage and growers would hardly care to contract any portion without all of the crop. This additional hazard of the crop is said to postpone buying until a more definite knowledge of what the final outcome will be. And bumping against the provisions of the new law is not an entirely pleasant thing to contemplate, either.
 Report reaches us that field buying of the new crop has started in a limited way in the Trempealeau valley during the week, but up to this date has not spread to other sections, nor attracted many of the larger operators.
 A strip of hail is reported to have swept across the northern portion of Vernon county Sunday night, covering several tobacco growing valleys.

FIRST CRANBERRIES OF SEASON ON THE MARKET

Fancy Cape Cod cranberries were received this morning and are selling at ten cents a pound. These are the first on the Janesville markets and their quality is fair, there being many berries among the shipment dealers claim the flavor is extra good.
 Businessmen continue to come in to the market at a big demand and the local farmers are loading the market with their product. Demands for fish were strong this morning and the dealers had little trouble in selling of their shipments. Pike and trout ruled the favorites and sold at eighteen cents per pound. Oysters will appear in the near future.

SOON PLACE FORMS
 FOR BRIDGE ARCH

Moulds for First Form West on Bank
 Will Be Placed as Soon as Old Structure Is Razed.
 Forms for the first arch of the new Milwaukee street bridge, to be built outward from the west bank, will be placed as soon as the workmen of the Gould Construction Company complete tearing out about four hours of the old wooden bridge. The derick is being used for this purpose as the work can be done very much more rapidly than when done by hand alone. It is hoped to begin work on the bridge by tomorrow or Sunday.
 The portable steam engine that has stood on the west bank since construction began, is being lowered into place on staging near the cof-ferdam. It will be used to pump out the water so that the anchor piles can be saved off three feet below the top the cofferdam. The work of filling it with concrete will then be resumed.
 An old stone crib, believed to be the remains of the second bridge built across the river at this point, has been giving trouble to the men who are driving sheet piling for the cof-ferdam of the east abutment. Most of the stone has been removed by this time and good progress is being made. Remains of an old pier are also found underneath the Jeff-ferts building, where the water is now scarcely deep enough to float a flat-bottomed skiff.
 No place has yet been found to put in a night crew but one will be given work at the earliest opportunity.

MAKING A SANITARY
 INSPECTION OF CITY

William Hemming Assisting Health Officer Dr. S. B. Buckmaster in Doing the Work.
 Acting under the direction of City
 Health Officer Dr. S. B. Buckmaster, William Hemming has been at work this week making a thorough sanitary inspection of the city, going through the alleys and back yards and noting whether there are accumulations of garbage and other offensive and disease-breeding refuse. Mr. Hemming is devoting his entire time to the work, and Dr. Buckmaster has been giving much of his own time as he can spare. They report that the city is in good condition from a sanitary standpoint with the exception of a few small districts whose residents are careless and disposed to disobey the orders of the Health Officer.
 Where garbage has accumulated or other violations of the sanitary regulations are discovered Mr. Hemming notifies the violators in person rather than act through the police. This too has been the practice of Dr. Buckmaster, and in the majority of instances they have found courteous reception and promises to remedy defects complained of. Often garbage accumulates because of inability of the householder to engage a man to do the work, and they are glad to be informed where they can obtain their services.
 With the consent of Mayor Fathers Dr. Buckmaster has taken the twenty dollars and a few cents left over from the clean-up day fund of last spring to pay for the services of Mr. Hemming and for the hauling away of such refuse for whom no one in particular seems responsible. It would seem that the Health Officer in his work a deal if he was provided with a small fund each year to pay for labor and teaming in instances of this kind.

 that Cyrus Harmon, a bachelor uncle

 he, a sister in Hastings, Nebraska, and a brother in Iron, Michigan, were joint heirs. The attorney asked how Harmon spelled his name but was death. From what he has heard of him he is of the opinion that he was time than when he died. His fortune

DR. TRIMMER

The Regular and Reliable Specialist

I treat successfully the cases I undertake and accept no fee from those that cannot be successfully treated. That is why I continue my visits year after year, while other specialists make only a few visits and cease to return.

That I have been eminently successful in all chronic diseases is proven by the satisfactory results obtained in difficult and long standing cases which had baffled the skill of many other physicians.

Being a graduate of one of the best schools of regular practice in this country, having had vast practical experience and many years of extensive practice, I have become so proficient that I can locate and explain your trouble in a few moments, and it costs no more to be under the care of an experienced physician than an inexperienced one.

I successfully treat CATARRH, Eye, Ear, Nose, Throat and Lung diseases in early cases.

STOMACH, LIVER, KIDNEY, HEART,
Nerve, Blood and Skin Disorders.

GALL STONES,
Gravel, Rheumatism, Neuritis and Bright's Disease in early stages. Inflammation of the Bladder and diseases of the Female Organs.

PILES, FISTULA AND FISSURE treated without the use of the knife or detention from business.

DISEASE OF MEN
I have a special treatment which I would like to explain in person.

If you or your family have any of the above diseases call and see me at once, as a delay may be dangerous. Consultation costs you nothing and is confidential.

THE RED BUTTON

By
WILL IRWIN
Author of
The City that Was, Etc.

"It's asking a lot of you, dear," she said, "but I've been so busy getting this place shook together that I haven't had time to mind my own affairs. I've a cousin in town and I just haven't had time to pay her any attention. It's been simply scandalous the way I've neglected her. Miss Estrilla is kind of nervous tonight, and I hate to leave her alone until her brother comes—anyhow, he misses some evening. Just sit by her—at it he shows up you don't have to do even that. Goodness knows, I wish I'd got her a nurse at the start instead of trying to boss the thing myself."

Betsy-Barbara accepted the new responsibility. "I'd love it," she said almost cheerfully. "Constance is going to try to get some sleep tonight, and I'll put her to bed right after dinner. And I've been dying to meet Miss Estrilla."

Miss Estrilla's appearance appealed at once to Betsy-Barbara's quick sympathies. Her eyes were shaded further, she wore heavy colored glasses. She was a rather tall and slender woman. Betsy-Barbara decided. Her face, bold in the bony structure, seemed to have a kind of exquisite shyness about her which blended perfectly with a punctilious Spanish courtesy. She was Spanish in manner, alone, however. She spoke English without a trace of her brother's amusing roll.

Betsy-Barbara, when the ice was broken, chattered girl-fashion on the events of the day in the boarding-house, holding above the subject of the tragedy which had drawn them together. Miss Estrilla, though she listened with interest, did not avail herself of openings to respond with character of her own. Betsy-Barbara was running down when she betwined herself of a new resource.

"I've brought up the evening paper," she said, "wouldn't you like to have me read it to you? There's a splendid column in the high life."

"I should like it very much," replied Miss Estrilla, after a pause at which Betsy-Barbara wondered.

"I'm just crazy about the New York paper," resumed Betsy-Barbara, as she perched herself on a table to get at the dim point of light. "The Arabian Nights things that happen in this town will drive me crazy yet."

"Just a minute," she said, "see if they've found the Hollister baby. I'm nearly dead over her!"

Curiosity satisfied, Betsy-Barbara read the headlines and rendered in full the stories which Miss Estrilla indicated. She was absorbed in the account of splendid burglary, when a knock sounded at the door. And Estrilla entered.

As he remembered her with a bow of inimitable attention and courtesy, as he crossed the room and tenderly kissed his sister, Betsy-Barbara had somehow the feeling that she was meeting a stranger. For the first time, it came to her, she expressed to herself, "Handsome" was her first mental comment. That marked against him in her books. She distrusted the handsome male. A man, according to Betsy-Barbara's perfectly clean-cut set of opinions, should be like a bull-terrier—ugly, a little rough and awkward, faithful, kind. "But nice in spite of it," was her second mental comment. She formulated another thing about him in the minutes while she watched. His quality was—careless—that was the word. The glances of his eye, the attitude of his body, the gestures of his hands, all bore the mark of carelessness.

Betsy-Barbara took in her details as he faced about and addressed her. He was small—but she had always noticed that obvious fact, looking at the figure on the bed, one would have called the sister the taller of the two. He was nevertheless perfectly formed. He had a plume of black hair which glimmered in the sunlight with a dusky tinge, while Betsy-Barbara's native gold-and-satin tresses.

"I have been taking care of your sister, you see," said Betsy-Barbara. "Aren't you glad?"

"I must be going now," said Betsy-Barbara in her best schoolmistress manner.

"She has been kind enough to read me the newspapers," rolled the rich contralto of the invalid from the bed. "I think you and your sister are wonderfully alike, and yet wonderfully different," said Betsy-Barbara, carefully ignoring the personal note in Estrilla's remark.

"Resemblance is a compliment to me—the difference what you call a—siam," replied Estrilla.

"I must be going now," said Betsy-Barbara in her best schoolmistress manner.

"If you do not deprive us of yourself so soon," replied Estrilla, and "Please stay," echoed his sister.

Betsy-Barbara remembered what she had heard of Spanish politeness—its over-elaboration and over-courtesy. But her Anglo-Saxon mind could discover no way to parry with equal politeness. Also she told herself that when one has dwelt too long with razed-out eyes to be amused, she sat up. Five minutes, while brother and sister made her the focus of their conversation, but she was not amused. In the presence of his sister, Estrilla appeared a different man from the light tender with words of their evening down-stairs. He was grave; he was formal. Infinitely tender toward Miss Estrilla, he was also attentive toward Betsy-Barbara, but he did not play with her as usual. It was puzzling, but a little fascinating, this change. Betsy-Barbara summoned fact to the aid of manners and maiden modesty. She invented an excuse to shield herself against Spanish politeness, and left Estrilla bowing gravely at the threshold.

In five minutes more, Betsy-Barbara, summoned fact to the aid of manners and maiden modesty. She invented an excuse to shield herself against Spanish politeness, and left Estrilla bowing gravely at the threshold.

Betsy-Barbara thought first of her responsibility. Silently she opened Constance's door and tiptoed to the bed. Her Lady of Troubles was asleep. By the night lamp which Constance kept burning against the demons of her night thoughts, Betsy-Barbara noted the growth of lines in the relaxed face. She sighed and crept back into the hall. There she hesitated a moment. The house seemed deserted. It was too late for venturing forth alone; yet, somehow, she must exercise the vague black visions which began to surround her. She who must keep courage for two. Also, something which she could not analyze was stirring disquiet in her soul.

"If I only had some work!" she said to herself, and sighed again. So, meditating, she wandered almost down-stairs. The doors of the parlor were open; the lights were on; the baby-grand piano stood open, inviting.

"Only merry tunes, though," she warned herself as she sat down. And she started the liveliest jik she knew. Presently, she began to sing to her pleasant untutored voice, which would not be right after dinner. And she started the liveliest jik she knew. Presently, she began to sing to her pleasant untutored voice, which would not be right after dinner. And she started the liveliest jik she knew. Presently, she began to sing to her pleasant untutored voice, which would not be right after dinner. And she started the liveliest jik she knew.

Where the song was finished, Estrilla leaned on the piano and looked down at Betsy-Barbara. His mood seemingly had changed; it was his whim to talk.

"They are a little cold on the surface, those Scotch love-songs," he said, "though warm beneath, like a helens. Now we who speak Spanish—we can throw our emotions to the surface."

"Don't you think," responded Betsy-Barbara, "that to conceal it—but to show it there is the more wonderful way after all?"

The blood of the MacGregors in Betsy-Barbara was calling her to the defense of her own.

"Do you happen to know any of our Spanish songs?" pursued Estrilla.

"Only Juanita, I think—and La Paloma."

Estrilla looked at though he might have laughed but of Spanish politeness, it is not so.

"These are Spanish for outside consumption, as when the English call your cheap—oil-cloth is it not—'American cloth.' Let me sing to you—but a Spanish song does not go well with oil-cloth."

"There's a guitar over in the alcove," announced Betsy-Barbara.

"Far-seeing maiden!" exclaimed Betsy-Barbara with such a delicious Spanish lilt on her vowels that Betsy-Barbara laughed a little and, though understanding, laughed with her.

So he tuned the guitar, Betsy-Barbara finding it easy for him on the piano. And he broke the strings, he made comment on them.

"This—you hear—is the angel string. It is for celestial harmonies. One can not go wrong on this string, but it is too fine and high to make all our music. This is the main-string. You can go very right or very wrong on this one. 'Thees one,' he pronounced it, and he struck the vowels as though lingering on the thought. "This is the woman-string. Listen—how discordant now! I tune it to the man-string, for I am God of this little world—and now how beautiful!"

"You are talking of poetry!" said Betsy-Barbara, and thought of the phrase as somewhat awkward.

"Ah, but I am inspired!" replied Estrilla.

"The surely doesn't mean me," thought Betsy-Barbara, "that would be too delicious!" However, he was looking not at her but at the guitar.

"Listen!" he resumed, giving the strings one final caressing stroke. And in his light floating tenor, he began:

"Alma pura de luz y alegría—"

"What does it mean?" asked Betsy-Barbara when he had finished. He translated it, and she translated it.

"White spirit of joy and light—if the clouds should cover you—it is I who would blow them away with the wind of my love—I, Cholina mia!" "That Cholina mia I can not translate. You have nothing in English which carries so much endearment," he added. "I invited them both to have an

Betsy-Barbara, her golden head on one side, meditated his words. "It's pretty—very pretty. But has it the deep feeling of ours?" Although Betsy-Barbara taught English literature, and composition to the middle class of Arden Seminary, she floundered a little in this attempt at literary criticism. "Now this for example," she fled to song for expression, and began:

"Ye banks an' braes—"

"Tender," he admitted, "but gloomy. And why should there be gloom in expressing love? You do not know our depth of passion. We live our passion and our gloom—and when we sing we make our thought tender so that we may forget. Listen!" Now he struck a deeper key:

"Pero al abrírse la rosa—"

"I have made that into English verse," he concluded—

"But the rose unfolds in the dawn at the touch of the sun and the dew, and the sun and rain and the sun—"

"Is the fourth and the thought of you," Betsy-Barbara, she was about to say more; but his eyes rested upon her as he started another song:

"Angel divino que tu es!"

"That," he concluded, "is in praise of the mantilla blanca. The song is quite in the custom now, dear. Now and then we have women colored not like the rest of us—dark—but white and gold like the angels. In some countries she had the privilege of wearing a white mantilla, and wherever she went, she was a queen. This is how it went: 'A divine angel wore thee, white mantilla. The warp was goodness and the woof beauty. Thy person is like white rose, thine eyes the blue heaven, and thy soul the void above heaven.'"

He strummed little shimmering chords as he spoke. He fell to silence, but still the languorous music quivered from the guitar. Betsy-Barbara turned about on the piano stool, her hands folded lightly in her lap, her eyes cast down. He was speaking again; and this time it was not what he said which moved and disturbed her—it was his tone.

"Mantilla blanca!" he was saying over and over again; "mantilla blanca!"

It was many years before Betsy-Barbara, looking back over the thing, could analyze the feeling of that moment, could put it in its true relation to herself and her life. At the time, she knew only that she sat there, motionless, embarrassed, but inert, that she felt shame yet also a certain pleasure at the steady look of those caressing eyes. It lasted only a moment.

His door slammed violently. Betsy-Barbara, started as though caught in something guilty. She hesitated a moment for fear of showing her feelings to Estrilla. Then she walked out into the hall. There was no one in sight. That seemed curious, since the hall stairs were not carpeted, and one could hear foot-steps. It was as though some one had closed the door without entering. When she turned back, puzzled, she felt the necessity of explanation.

"I thought it might be Miss Harding," she said, falsely, "I wanted to see her."

He only smiled the same caressing smile. But the spell was cracked; and Betsy-Barbara herself completed the break.

"Well, anyhow," she said, pulling herself together, "the Spanish has no martial music like ours. And she struck up 'Scots Wha Hae.' Nor did music and conversation turn again to love-songs. In fact, half an hour later, Betsy-Barbara, wearing a bib, which he caught mid-course, as he seemed to catch every delicate shaft of meaning. He rose and bade her a formal good night. "I hope I may sing with you again," he said at parting.

Betsy-Barbara went to her own room. She dawdled over her preparations for undressing, making a dozen starts and stops. She was not sleepy; a hundred currents of thought were crossing and recrossing in her mind. So at last she threw a kimono over her evening gown and sat down at the window, maiden-fashion, and thought.

To make no further mystery, the person who opened the front door and disturbed the tele-atete between Estrilla and Betsy-Barbara, was Tommy North. He had been searching for a job. No mystery about that, either. The reason was Betsy-Barbara. The fluid mercury of his disposition had fallen almost to abiding zero. In this mood, he unlocked the front door. The parlor was open; he heard the soft thrum of a guitar. Hungry for companionship, he crossed the thick hall carpet to the front door. He looked in and beheld Betsy-Barbara sitting with flushed cheeks and folded hands. It was the attitude of a woman who yields. Beside her sat the Estrilla person, looking gently, enigmatically, and looking a million langurs. With a movement that was an explosion, Tommy rushed out, slamming the front door behind him.

His feet, rather than his will, carried him away. There was a saloon at the corner. As by instinct, Tommy rushed into it and ordered a glass of whisky—his first since the night of the Hanksa murder. He shivered slightly when he drank it, as he always did at the new taste of raw whisky. A cab-driver whom he knew rose up from the corner and greeted him respectfully. Tommy invited him to have a drink. The cab-driver introduced him to the bartender. Tommy invited them both to have an other drink. The bartender introduced a paper-banger, Tommy included him in the fourth drink. The bartender asked them to have one on the house. By this time, all was over with Tommy North's sobriety. In a heroic incredibly short, he fulfilled the tragic purpose for which he left the boarding-house.

Now nearly every drunkard—and especially an amateur like Thomas North—has one latent peculiarity which comes out with intoxication. His was the homing instinct. He always sought his own bed when drunk, no matter how embarrassing the circumstances might be. An hour and a half after he stood next to the cabman, Tommy North, muttering over and over to himself, "New life in new clime—wouldn't you be a genius?" was weaving toward the select boarding-house of Madame Rosalie de Grange. Laboriously he unlocked the door; painfully, and with occasional mutterings about a blasted life, he reached the first landing. And on that landing a door opened. Betsy-Barbara stood looking at him.

Yet curiosity, as the gaslight caught her fall, it was not upon Betsy-Barbara's shocked wide-open eyes that he fixed his gaze. He looked at her feet. Betsy-Barbara was wearing high-heeled velvet shoes with paste buckles. In the full light, they sparkled like real diamonds. Betsy-Barbara stepped back with woman's instinctive fear of a drunken man. So one of those slippers moved. Tommy, his eyes still toward the ground, clutched at it. The motion almost tumbled him over—old make him reel against the door-post.

"Get it on hold it," he said, "then discover the murder."

"Mr. North—Mr. North!" exclaimed Betsy-Barbara and stood helpless, staring at this weird performance. His mind seemed to shift; he became aware of her as a person; and he struggled for articulation.

"Drunk!" he said. "Final disgrace—everything gone now!"

A great advertising medium—The Gazette Want Ad page.

His Fowls Predict Thunderstorms. Predicting thunderstorms is the novel use to which a poultry-rearer of Downum, France, puts his fowls. He is said to have discovered that by mixing pepper with the food of his fowls their plumage turns pink, which changes to a vivid scarlet about an hour before a coming thunderstorm.

Numerous Kinds of Fairies. How many kinds of fairy were there? A good many. For an elf differs from a troll, who must not be confounded with a pixy. Then in addition there was the helpe, the gnome, the brownie, the kobold, the nis and the urisk (a hairy Scotch spirit).
